THE SEA BENEATH OUR FEET

A reflective walk around the Pevensey Levels and its churches, with inspirational readings, including the words of marine biologist and conservation pioneer, Rachel Carson (1907-1964)

This spiritual walk, close to the 60th anniversary of Rachel Carson's death, is open to those of all faiths and none. Al Gore once described her 1962 book on the dangers of DDT, Silent Spring, 'as a cry in the wilderness, a deeply felt, thoroughly researched, and brilliantly written argument that changed the course of history.'
